DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. This office action is in response to Applicants' amendment of 6/23/06.
- 1.1 Claims 2, 4 and 10-14 remain pending.
- 1.2 The prior art rejections of record are maintained in response to Applicants' amendment.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicants allege that Abramovici et al. "Digital Systems Testing and Testable Design," 1990, Pgs. 479-487 and NN74091034: "Circuit Diagnosis and Design Analysis System;" IBM Tech. Discl. Bulletin, July 1987, US, VOL. 17 ISSUE: 4 Pgs: 1034 - 1035 ; September 1, 1974 (hereinafter IBM Tech) are directed to different levels of testing techniques, and that, since these references are non-overlapping, said references cannot render the claims at bar obvious.

Examiner disagrees and notes that Abramovici et al. does not limit IC testing exclusively to BIST.

Examiner further notes that the approach whereby external tester is of programmable test generation type is clearly disclosed in Abramovici et al. {See Abramovici et al., Id., Pgs. 479-487, wherein, e.g., shift registers are programmed (or PRPG: at page 483) via seed values to generate test patterns/sequences for test application thereof to the device under test.}

Claim Rejections - 35 USC ' 103

3. Claims 2, 4 and 10-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over as being unpatentable over Abramovici et al. and IBM Tech.

As per Claims 2, 4 and 10-14, IBM Tech substantially discloses an external tester 60 that generates logic test patterns/vectors to test/diagnose the logic circuitry of plural semiconductor chips 120 to enable fault localization. Not specifically described in detail in

Art Unit: 2133

IBM Tech is the approach whereby external tester is of programmable test generation type. However Abramovici et al., in an analogous art, discloses “Digital Systems testing and Testable Design,” wherein such techniques are described. {See Abramovici et al., Id., Pgs. 479-487, wherein, e.g., shift registers are programmed (or PRPG: at page 483) via seed values to generate test patterns/sequences for test application thereof to the device under test.} Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the procedure in IBM Tech by including therein programmable test pattern circuitry for external application of test data as taught by Abramovici et al., because such modification would provide the procedure disclosed in IBM Tech with a technique whereby “TPG (test pattern generation) is external to the semiconductor and hence not part of the functional circuitry. ...” to also thereby reduce tester hardware overhead. {See Abramovici et al., page 481 : last sentence.}

Abramovici et al. discloses equivalent test sequencing/output response analysis/compression (e.g., via MISR: at page 483) , e.g., on pages 477, 481, and 483.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.

Art Unit: 2133
